HOTEL MEN CONTRIBUTE TO DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN FUND THROUGH BREWING CO. AGENT

Exposures Is Made
By Westmoreland District Attorney.

STERLING IS INCLUDED

Money Is Being Used to Further His Candidacy for Congress Along With That of John H. Wilson in Butler-Westmoreland District.

Exposures of Democratic party in the campaign in Westmoreland and Fayette counties was made by Neil A. Cort, district attorney, in a speech at West Newton Saturday night. Flashing signed documents on his audience, District Attorney Cort conclusively proved that the campaign of John H. Wilson for congress in the Westmoreland-Butler district is one of the most flagrant instances ever found in the face of the voters by a political party in this section.

The documents referred to are signed statements from certain hotel keepers who were solicited and contributed the sum of $250 each to the Democratic campaign fund.

This in the face of the Wilson campaign in which the Butler county Democratic is making a strong appeal to the temperance people of the district to vote for him because he voted for the Volstead act.

Mr. Cort, in a well ordered speech, step by step, led his hearers through the byways and hedges which had been traveled by administration leaders in the part of the state who are being sought and man to man in the Wilson campaign from the Westmoreland-Butler district and Bruce Sterling, the Democratic state chairman, from the Fayette county district.

Officially Mr. Cort is in an exceptional position to know whereof he speaks. In the face of the Wilson campaign, he has been told of the full extent of the Wilson campaign in Westmoreland county. He told of the number of arrests that have been made and the difficulty his office has had with the Wilson campaign in the Westmoreland county, in disposing of the case.

Mr. Cort said that every drop of liquor that has been "stolen" from all but one distillery in Fayette county and that no prosecution has been made by any branch of the federal government interested in the case, expressed the fact that some of this "stolen" whisky would be used on election day for the Democratic party.

"And," exclaimed Mr. Cort, "in Westmoreland county let me assure you that a check will be kept on every place where we have a suspicion and all violations will be taken care of up to the full extent of my ability."

Mr. Cort's speech follows in part:
"John H. Wilson, the Democratic candidate for Congress, is making a desperate effort to get the vote of the temperance people of this district as well as the active support of those voters who are friendly to the liquor cause."

"In a letter to the Westmoreland County Temperance Federation, to some extent evasive, after two attempts by letter to satisfy, he finally declares for the election of John H. Wilson the Volstead enforcement act, with an intent, if re-elected to Congress, to vote for an alcoholic increase if a majority of his constituents desire such an increase."

"On the other hand certain large liquor interests of the county are enjoying the protection of the Democratic state organization, through the local Democratic organization, are soliciting Democratic campaign funds from the licensed hotel men of the county to aid in the election of Fox for president and John H. Wilson for Congress, and to my own personal knowledge two persons thus licensed have paid in cash $250. each, for that purpose."

"A candidate tethered by such meanings I denounce as a political mountebank and a cheat, a deception and a snare, and not the type that should represent this great industrial district in the national House of Representatives."

"I make this assertion, not without proof of its authenticity, for I hold in my hand here and now, for your inspection if any of you so desire the signed statements of two licensed hotel keepers who paid said amounts to the personal representatives of the Victor Brewing company of Jeannette, for the purpose I have stated."

"Will you by your ballots vote to foster and sustain the political dynasty in Western Pennsylvania of Sterling, Lewellyn Guffey and Congressman Wilson under such circumstances?"

"These men bear a distinct relationship to the national administration, Sterling, the Democratic state chairman and candidate for Congress in the Fayette county district, Lewellyn Guffey, national revenue collector for the Western District of Pennsylvania; Guffey, national Democratic committeeman of the state of Pennsylvania, and Congressman Wilson, so close to the administration that any demand from it affecting its own district and Western Pennsylvania can be obtained."

"Whom says both in public and over his own signature that he voted in Congress for the Volstead enforcement act and that he favors its enforcement, and yet I say, with full knowledge of the provisions of the act and with a full knowledge of its non-enforcement in Western Pennsylvania, with a full knowledge of the deplorable conditions on every hand, with full knowledge of the fact that it is impossible for any one who reads the public press, with his finger in touch with the Democratic officers whose business it is to enforce that law and with his influence with the national administration, he has not raised his voice, nor his hand in protest against the failure of the administration to perform its duty."

GETTING NATION "RIGHT WITH GOD," OBJECT OF N. R. A.

Purposes of Organization Outlined at Christian Citizenship Institute.

MORMONISM MAKES GAINS

Six States Controlled Politically by "Kingdom" and Five Others Partly-ly; Twenty-seven Reasons for Disfranchising Uniform Code the Great Need.

The sessions of the Christian Citizenship Institute, which are being held in Connellsville under the auspices of the National Reform association, began yesterday morning when a number of speakers occupied the pulpit of several churches in the city and discussed themes relating to the purposes of the association.

The first general meeting was held in the high school auditorium at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. Larimore C. Denice, assistant superintendent of the a societies, made the first address during which he stated the objects of the organization, now numbering thousands of members in all sections of the United States, to be the promotion of Christian citizenship, "getting the nation right with God," and the elimination of the forces of evil which have come upon the nation.

He recounted the many achievements of the association and made an earnest plea for membership and financial support.

The other speaker was Federal Prohibition Commissioner John S.
Kramer, who was introduced by Mayor Duggan. Bela B. Smith, city superintendent of schools, presided. The invocation was offered by Rev. J. S.
Showers. A chorus made up of the choirs of the Presbyterian and United Presbyterian church choruses was directed by John S. Kramer.

Unless the Mormon "kingdom" is some day to become the dominant power in the United States regulation of the cult must be placed in the hands of the national government by constitutional amendment. Dr. Denice stated that the Mormon "kingdom" is the national reform association, and that the program followed.

Bruce's Prohibition Missionaries Exploit His "Dry" Virtues Here

PART II.

The Democratic women who are doing missionary work among the new voters of the county in behalf of Bruce Sterling, as the intrepid and Fearless Defender of Prohibition, have extended their operations from Uniontown to Connellsville and other towns.

In their talks upon their sister voters they are seeking to persuade them to believe Bruce is drier now than when he voted for the Prohibition Amendment in the 55th Congress and, when subsequently called to task by "the boys" of the liquor trade, he justified his breach of faith to them by declaring he had thus voted because he "had to go along with the Administration," but at the same time suaively assuring the much disgruntled "boys" that he would "fix things all right" when it came to enforcing the new amendment.

Drier now than in November, 1918, when he joined with Adonis Mitchell Palmer, Barefooted-in-Chief, in explaining that the defeat of Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, their party's "wet" candidate for governor, and the defeat of Bruce, then both "wet" and "dry," by Samuel A. Kendall for a second term in Congress, were due to the well-known, but never before so frankly admitted, fact "that the Democratic party is wet" in the state of Pennsylvania and all the Congressional districts thereof.

Not having been fully advised upon the matter the emissaries of this sterling advocate of temperance do not of course explain the respective obligations Bruce was under during this campaign to his liquor and ministerial friends, to both of which groups he had sacredly pledged his allegiance with his usual unflinching impartiality. To his moist brethren for the material aid that could be measured in denominations, quantities and terms used in trade and commerce, and to his "dry" brethren for the in-tangible but helpful and strengthening aid and comfort expressed in sympathy, interest and prayers in behalf of his cause.

Drier now than during the stirring events of the months following shortly after January 16 last when wicked and designing individuals staged "mysterious raids" on the bonded warehouses at Connellsville, Mess-more, Fairbairn and elsewhere in the county in rapid succession, and have since so successfully eluded the vigilance of the lynx-eyed sleuths, collector, deputy and other officers and employees of the 23rd Internal Revenue District, that all the public knows of the whereabouts of the liquor thus ruthlessly removed from the custody of the appointees selected by Sterling, is that the several lots have been catalogued as "Missing 43," "Missing 38," etc., and safely stored for prodigal distribution a few days before election.

(More, and Worse, to Come.)

est to all regardless of politics.

THREE HOMES ROBBED

Eatables and a New Hat Are Secured in North Pittsburgh Street.

Robbers last night entered the homes of Dr. J. Y. Woods, Charles Davidson and Eugene Director J. E.
Sims in North Pittsburgh street. At the Sims home a refrigerator on the back porch was robbed of eatables. A lock was broken from the cellar door of the Davidson home and some chickens and eatables were taken from that place.

The only thing missing from Dr.
Woods' residence was a new hat hanging to the wall. Nothing else was disturbed. Entrance was gained by jumping a kitchen window. The Woods family would not have known of the presence of the robbers had not they tracked fresh line, which had been scattered on the back yard, through the house.

PROHIBITION HERE TO STAY, DECLARES FEDERAL COMMISSIONER

But Can Be Annulled by a "Wet" Congress Amending Volstead Act to Permit Light Wines and Beer.

Having in mind the extraordinary efforts being made to create the impression that Bruce Sterling is an "honest-to-goodness Prohibitionist" and is not receiving the aid and support of every bootlegger, bonded warehouse "rabble," and illicit vendor of booze in the 23rd Congressional District, the people who heard Federal Prohibition Commissioner John S. Kramer at the high school auditorium yesterday afternoon, did not fail to observe the coincidence between his visit here at this time to warn, to prevent the election of a "wet" Congress and the propitious claims made by Sterling's behalf.

The talk Commissioner Kramer was highly interesting, instructive and entertaining. He declared at the outset that it "is not a question of Prohibition any more. That is no longer to be considered. The thing is that prohibition is here to stay forever. We can never get rid of it. To a great many of us this is a comforting statement. We couldn't get rid of it because we couldn't get 12 majorities in 36 states in the union to vote to take the 18th Amendment out of the Constitution. Thirty-three states had prohibition themselves before we ever adopted the federal prohibition amendment."

"The question is, what are we going to do with it? It isn't like a question we could agitate with the hope that some day or other the principle might be changed. We have it here to stay. It would be well for officials of the country to remember this thing is here to stay. There is no other principle placed in the constitution by such a great majority."

"No one has a right as a man who lives in a democracy to advocate the breaking of the law because he believes differently. If you can't abide by the will of the majority you will have to get out of the country."

The commissioner said he didn't blame the drinker. The stuff had always been easy to obtain and if a man desired to drink it wasn't wrong for him to do so. He said he believed a lot of church people differed in their views regarding prohibition, which was also all right, until propitation became established, when "any one any longer had a right to an opinion," he declared.

"Now that we have Prohibition, the serious thing for people to consider is the possibility of its an-nullment. If a wet Congress is elected, by permitting the manufacture of light wines and beer, it will be whiskey next, then Prohibition will be destroyed. It is our solemn duty to watch Congress."

Arrangements have been completed for a series of mass meetings, the first to be held at Leisnering No. 3 this evening at 8 o'clock. Tomorrow evening at the same hour there will be a meeting at Leisnering No. 1 and on Wednesday evening at Trotter.

DISTILLERY ROBBED

Seven Barrels of Whisky Taken Sunday at Fairbairn.

The Fairbairn distillery at Fairbairn was robbed of seven barrels of whisky between 2 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The negro watchman, George Stanard, has been arrested and is being held pending an investigation. It is also said four warrants have been issued for men seen in that vicinity with a truck.

The watchman says he was asleep in a stable when the robbery occurred and knew nothing of it until he noticed the truck had been broken out.
It is said there are still several barrels of liquor in the distillery.

Hardly, say immigration officials. The ex-miners are going to stay in town this time. Some few will go back, but most of the foreign-born working men will stay in town.

We emphasize the word real because Aaron's reputation years we have been making that reputation. We consider it our greatest asset and not to be trifled with for a temporary advantage. So when Aaron's announces some unusual trade departure, you may be assured that the store itself will back up the full meaning of that announcement to the limit.

We repeat that the integrity of this store guarantees this reduction as a legitimate discount of 20% from originally fair-

OH, DEAR! MY BACK!

Mercurial Heavens, how my back hurts in the morning! It's all due to an over-abundance of that poison called uric acid.

The kidneys are not able to get rid of it. Such conditions you can readily overcome and prolong life by taking "Anurie" (anti-uric-acid). This can be obtained at almost any drug store, in tablet form.

When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism or gout; or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night, get Dr. Pierce's Anurie, it will put new life into your kidneys and your entire system. Send Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., ten cents for trial package.

PENFIELD, PA.—"Just a few lines to let others know what benefit I received from Dr. Pierce's Anurie Tablets. I had an excess of uric acid during expectancy. I got very bad, could scarcely get around, but before I had taken one bottle of the 'Anurie Tablets' I was again able to get around, and I got along fine. I highly recommend these tablets for I think they saved my life. Thanks to Dr. Pierce."—Mrs. S. E. RHOADS, Box 77.

"LANGUID"— THAT'S THE WORD

Not Sick Exactly, Just Seem to Have No Ambition

An Awful Feeling Seldom Necessary

Pepto-Mangan, the Red Blood Builder, Does Away With Languor.

If you don't feel like doing things, you won't. If you wonder where some people get all their energy, the answer is from good food which in turn makes rich, red blood.

If your food does not give the nourishment and vigor it should, it is most likely that your blood is so weak that it needs a little extra help for a time to build it up to normal strength.

Thousands of men and women have been restored to vigorous health and lasting happiness by Gude's Pepto-Mangan. This beneficial blood tonic contains the very properties so vitally needed to improve the blood. Pepto-Mangan, if taken for a few weeks, will enrich the blood and create thousands of the tiny red blood cells that are so necessary to carry nourishment and strength to every part of the body.

Be sure to ask your druggist for "Gude's" when you order Pepto-Mangan. For convenience it is prepared in liquid and tablet form, both possessing exactly the same medicinal properties. "Gude's" is the genuine Pepto-Mangan. Look for the name "Gude's" on the package.—Adv.

Release for Women who Suffer

The multitude of American women who suffer terribly day after day and year after year from ills peculiar to their sex is almost beyond belief, yet there is hardly a town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman, and often many, do not reside who have been restored to health from some of the worst forms of female ills, and often avoided operations by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

These Two Women Tell of Their Experience.

Caryllton, Ky.—"I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I moved the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak and languid, had no energy, and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. I have done all kinds of work and at present am an attendant at a State Hospital and am feeling fine. I shall always recommend your Vegetable Compound."—LILLIAN THAYER, 224 South 6th Street, Caryllton, Ky.

Omakas, Wis.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular. I suffered for a year and was unable to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and can do my own housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good for female weakness as can Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. Lillian E. WATSON, R. 1, Box 69, Omakas, Wis.

CHAPTER ONE

The Street of Strange Faces.

I. THE DARK CORNER.
The way of the thing was ever the same. It befell without warning, or rather, the girl had never learned to take heed of signs which seemed plain enough in retrospect, when she sat alone and puzzled her pretty head with the dark riddle of this shadow life which set her so widely apart from every girl she knew and, indeed, from all the rest of humankind.

She had a day of restlessness, whose every hour brewed its new peculiar mood, whose every mood was purposeless, with times of almost feverish gait, caustic, fitful, fugitive, and other times when for no reason in her knowledge she caught herself sighing long suffering sighs that shook her strangely. So might one's spirit sigh in weariness, faint with the burden of incessant strife, with some great antagonism of unguessable identity.

Toward midnight all these were soothed away into a feeling of serene peace and self-possession; and, saturated with consciousness of the rich, strong wine of vitality that quickened her, she thought of life in the likeness of a wide placid river, wherein she drifted like a fennel seed upon a stream whose waters were warm, sweet and calm with a penetrating quality of delicious calm she never dreamed could be disturbed, so absolute it seemed, so permanent, so imperturbable.

Only the signs persisted, oddly, as if her spirit knew moments of melancholy of which her mind knew nothing. And insidiously the tranquil surface of that contentment was flawed by apprehensions of menacing danger, of peril latent, stealthy and implacable; as though the swimmer nursed some monstrous shape of evil skulking unseen in those opaque depths—or felt herself subtly ensnared by a current whose irresistible net was altogether toward destruction.

Now at length perceiving what was to come, panic paralyzed in her the instinct of self-preservation; though before she knew the cup of being, she made no effort to fight free but, as she who knows that struggling must perish, she resigned herself and let the hand of fate work its will with her. Fascination, too, was at work, deep within her a mad desire to go again that wild way she had so often gone, and once more be, and do, and see.

It is so, so it must be, with those to whom a drug has made itself a thing of life and death. On about, like a head in the river, waited that turning in her psychic life, which she knew as the Dark Corner, where she lay passive in the grasp of that power which so obscurely led its rise in her past was repayment to her, being at once her Will and her Necessity. And as the Dark Corner drew momentarily more near, the transformation which she termed the Change was effected by what may only be described as a cessation of her very soul, after which came lassitude, a vast oblivion in which all lingering traces of reluctance were obliterated.

Now she was no longer herself, but another woman than the one she knew, a strange woman clothed in her own flesh but in no other way akin to her. Self of everyday, having no thought, impulse or emotion with which that Self could sympathize, save such as may be considered common to all her kind. Yet, incomprehensibly, consciousness of the old self-identity survived; and though (as she conceived it) disseminated from its tenement, her Self continued by her body's side, observant, critical, intrigued, something remained.

In this wise, wandering the Dark Corner, she passed into that place which she had named the Street of Strange Faces; and the enigma of this confusion of Self with non-Self was forgotten in the rash of exotic sensation and emotion, excitement and lawless joy which invariably accompanied definite and final commitment to renewed pursuit of those transcendental adventures.

II. LEONORA.
Together with the Faces, its windows made the Street, being of many wares, to each its own significant illumination: hard plate glass masks of saloons beaming false fellowship, opera shop fronts of ingratiating abas, windows of homely golden glow, others through which latticed shutters filtered sluttish gleams bespeaking the unspeakable, others again that gave only dull reflections in begrimed panes of naphtha flames flaring livid.

Monkey Glands Lead to New Tonic

Sheep and Cattle Glands Now Put Up in Tablet Form Combined With Iron.

The newspapers have reported cases of surgical operations where monkey glands have been transferred to human beings.

It is now further reported that gland substance taken from healthy young sheep and cattle, prepared in tablet form, are being administered in random, anemic conditions requiring building up and where there is evidence of glandular deficiency. It is claimed in support of this theory that our tiny glands govern the activity and health of the billions of life cells in our bodies. When we are weak, run-down, thin, anemic, listless it is claimed that our glands are lacking in strength and cannot supply the proper amount of needed help. So what could be more natural than to supply this lack with gland extracts of healthy animals?

ly above pushcart arrayed in unbroken lines along the curb.

Through this welter of light and shadow, in the gloom of the Faces passed and repassed, lurking darkly in forbidding doorways, seeking brazenly the brightest glare, coming and going without rest, in uncouth, cynical, kind and brutal, cunning and naive, wicked and innocent, swarthy, fair, unique, commonplace; faces that disgusted, faces that allured, faces that meant nothing, that were more empty, moulting masks; faces of oriental cast, yellow and red and brown; negro faces in every shade of quartering.

She knew them all; they all knew her. The sense of strangeness ebbed; with every step, with every look around, with every breath she drew, she was losing touch with her other Self which had so singularly renounced its authority and faded into impotence at the Dark Corner, but which still kept step with her, along to her more closely than her shadow, and like a writhing of the living, watched, noted and compared while taking part in actions wholly foreign to its nature and experiencing reactions obscure to it and unintelligible.

Now the girl moved swiftly, with ease and boldness, even with a hint of arrogance; giving the Faces look for look, smile for smile, frown for frown; laughing triumphantly up at a policeman who knitted black brows over indulgent blue eyes; flinging racy retorts to the banter of a knot of men emerging from a gin-mill; chatting with glance and word the advances of those who should have known better; chaffing hucksters who bawled in her ears the tawdry virtues of their wares; pausing now and again to exchange more kindly perusal with folk who held title to her likeness, cutting an impudent figure as confident and unabashed as a colt turned loose in home pastures.

Her sharp perceptions took in everything; not one considerable detail escaped their remark. And she liked it, she liked it all, she was curiously permeated to her very marrow with delight in sounds and sights and smells familiar to her senses since time beyond their earliest record.

The Street, never wide, was the narrower for its double rank of pushcarts. Between these an occasional automobile or horse-drawn vehicle went gingerly to spare the multitude of urinals; half dressed and less than half washed, of every age and almost every nationality, that swarmed upon the asphaltum. Renowned houses—their fire escapes converted into balconies lavishly draped with candid bedding and still more candid women—drew confidential heads together on high, leaving visible only a slender ribbon of cobalt sky. In between the air was sluggish, thick with unattractive haze, and rank with many odors; an unholy alliance of garlic, fried fish, boiled cabbage and stale beer maintaining debatable ascendancy over the native aroma of a stratum of society which holds soap less necessity than luxury. And the night was tumultuous with screams of children at criss-cross play, howls of babies wallowing in neglect, bawling of street vendors, each striving to outcrier his nearest competitor, chatter of thimble pianos, blare and whine of jaded phonographs; all relieved against a wholly normal undertone of incessant gossip and bickering.

The girl hunkered to herself the joy of living; this was to her the breath of life; even more, it was enterprise, adventure, the very stuff of Romance. She went her way smiling, with a conscious smile born of knowledge that she was dressed in her best, in her very newest best at that, garments of a cut and cost and quality such as the Street seldom saw.

Nevertheless, her show of nonch-lance cloaked circumspection; if her looks were free and roving, they were likewise keen and watchful. Though the width of the Street was between them, she was well aware of two plain-clothes men who turned to stare together concerning her curiously, after the absurd manner of their kind, out of the corners of their mouths.

But that was a minor circumstance, more fun than reason for worry. They couldn't judge a girl for wearing good clothes, even if it did not know where she had got them or how. The stress of her attention was due to considerations far more weighty; and when, of a sudden, at a crossing, she deserted his cause, she checked in unfeigned dismay, with startled pulses.

III. THE MAN MARIO.

On the far corner a tall man, simply clothed, composed of habit, stood stillness, hands clasped lightly before him in a posture with which the girl was well acquainted; head and shoulders lifting above the crowd. Against the tawny flames of naphtha torches his profile was sharp and black, the silhouette of an ascetic, gravely fine; it was better than she knew how its austerity was belied by haunted eyes.

"You Know... I Love You— I Make No Secret of That."

whose sincerity could wring truth from lips that moved to frame a lie.

And he was looking for her; she knew that, too. To a girl so keen that it touched her anger, she swung aside into the by-street, a grimy street that led away where but the way she wished to go. Yet she welcomed its sullen gloom and went swiftly, heedless of everything but the necessity of escaping, knowing in her heart she could not escape.

Her name was called in a voice of resonant timbre: "Leonora! I beg of you... It is I, Mario!" She stopped and swung round with a specious show of surprise subsiding into indifference. "Ton and manner were discouraging; but her heart was faint.

"Oh! hello! It's you..." The man paused, hat in hand, his attitude one of pleading and reproach, yet informed with an ineffable dignity.

"You saw me, Leonora. Why did you run—from me?" She tossed her head. "What makes you think I did?"

"I do not think; I know. You turned up this street to avoid me, Leonora. Why?"

"If you thought that—that I wanted to be left alone—why'd you follow me?"

The man lifted his hands palms up—peremptory and let them fall.

"You know... I love you. I make no secret of that. I have told you—how many times?—a hundred? Yes?"

—his enunciation grew more rapid—"and you are not indifferent to me. You never said so, but... I know."

"Oh, I like you all right—"

"No; more than that; too much to wish to hurt me. Is it not so?"

"Why, I don't want to hurt you, of course. But—if you've got to know—I was in a hurry. I've got a date—and I'm late."

"And I am detaching you! Forgive me—but let me go with you a little way."

The girl shot hunted glances right and left; then, since nothing in slight promised diversion, said ungraciously: "Nobody can stop your walking with me."

"Nobody but you, Leonora. One word—"

"One word from me and you'll do exactly as you please." With a nervous laugh—"Oh, come along!"—she turned back, waiting heartily, the man following at her side. "I'd just as leave you didn't come all the way, though."

"You do not wish me to know where you go." He nodded sober confirmation of an unuttered guess. "I see."

"You see a terrible lot." The girl had a spasm of irritation. "You're always seeing things. Well, what do you see now?"

"You go to meet those others"—his tone was sad—"those whom I have so often begged you—"

"Guess it's my business who my friends are, don't you?"

"Certainly, you give me no right to make it mine. That cannot affect the truth that such associations are unwise."

"Maybe I'm best judge of that, too." Leonora: "My friend to me? Deceive yourself if you must and cannot not me, not one who loves you as I do. Do not attempt it, even. It is no use."

With a courtesy the more gratifying because it was so novel, Mario put his hand under her arm, lightly piloting her through the human mazes of the bustling Street, which they crossed squarely and quickly left behind.

After a little while, being in the wrong, she said sulkily: "I don't see why you're always making out I'm trying to put something over on you. I never promised—"

"True. But you know what these friends of yours are, and their ways, whether they lead, their inevitable end. You know, if you persist, your fate must be as theirs."

"I guess what's good enough for my friends is good enough for me."

"No, Leonora; you are too good for that—or I could not love you."

LIFE WAS HARDLY WORTH ITS LIVING

That's Just the Way Pennsylvania Woman Says She Felt Before She Began Taking Tanlac.

"I am just so glad to see how perfectly my health is being restored that I feel like telling everybody about Tanlac," said Mrs. Theodore Harris, 1460 Middle Street, Sharnsburg, a suburb of Pittsburgh, Pa.

"Tanalac has done me so much good since I began taking it that I wish I had tried it three years ago when my trouble first started, for surely it would have saved me a world of suffering, to say nothing of large amount of money I have spent."

"My kidneys bothered me nearly all the time and there was a constant pain in the small of my back. I was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night and felt tired and worn out all the time."

"Even the children playing around or just any little noise would get my nerves all upset. I just felt so miserable all the time that life was hardly worth living."

"But I am now feeling altogether different. Tanlac just seemed to help me right from the start, and now my pain and distress is so much less that I hardly notice it any more."

"My appetite is splendid, my nerves are quiet and my sleep is sound and restful. I get up mornings thoroughly refreshed and I don't feel tired like I did before taking Tanlac."

"I have gained several pounds in weight and am still gaining both in weight and strength. I am going to take a few more bottles of Tanlac, but I feel feeling so wonderfully improved already that I can safely recommend it to anyone suffering as I did for the past three years."

RAILROADS CANNOT ASSIGN CARS UNLESS THEY TAKE OUTPUT

Of Mine Under Contracts Running at Least Six Consecutive Months.

COMMERCE BODY RULES

Applies to Private as Well as to Other Cars; Purpose of Order is to Eliminate Practice of Confiscation of Commercial Coal While in Transit.

Railroads may not assign cars for railroad fuel and fail to count such cars against the distributive share of cars to such mine, or mines, unless the entire output of the mine, or mines, affected is taken by the railroad for a period of not less than six consecutive months. The Interstate Commerce commission has decided in Service Order No. 18, which was issued on September 28, and went into effect on October 1.

The commission holds further that private cars placed for railroad fuel loading in accordance with the Interstate Commerce Commission decisions in the Traer and Hocking Valley cases will be designated as assigned cars. All other cars will be designated as unassigned cars.

In the decision in Traer vs. the Chicago and Alton railroad, the commission decided that it had authority over the distribution of cars to mines, and also how the general supply of cars for commercial loading should be distributed. It divided the car supplies into quotas for railroad fuel for the leading carriers, and fuel for other or foreign roads. The decision also prescribed the difference between private cars and cars for commercial loading, and laid down rules for the handling of each class. The decision was later sustained by the United States Supreme court.

In the case of the Railroad Commission of Ohio et al. vs. the Hocking Valley Railroad company, which was decided July 11, 1907, the commission held that a carrier should give to the owner or lessee of private cars the use of such cars and should also give to a coal company the foreign fuel when the number of private and foreign railway fuel cars should be counted against the distribution of cars, be counted against the company to which delivered, and such company should not be given, in addition to such delivery, a share of the system cars except when the number of private and foreign railway fuel cars, including system cars, foreign railway fuel cars, and so-called private cars, in which event it should be given only so many of the system cars as are necessary.

The ruling of the commission in Service Order No. 18 was occasioned, it is stated, because Rule 8 of the Car Service Section Circular No. 31 of the Railroad Administration is being applied in a manner inconsistent with the principles set forth in the Hocking Valley and Traer cases, and confusion and preference in the distribution of cars to coal mines have resulted.

The commission in its order makes the specific point that contracts entered into on or before November 1 for the purchase of coal and expiring on March 31, 1921, will be regarded as a compliance with the rule prescribed.

The order is aimed also to eliminate the practice of confiscating commercial coal by railroads while in transit, and to cause as little interference as possible between the loading of railroad coal and fuel for commercial purposes.

RAILROAD TRAFFIC UNAFFECTED BY THE ADVANCE IN RATES

Volume is as Heavy as During the Earlier Months of the Year; Slump in a Few Lines.

The statistics regarding the movement of freight in September show that the advances in freight rates made in the latter part of August have had no perceptible effect upon general business activity or upon the amount of freight shipped. "Not a few persons contended," says the Railway Age, "that such large advances in rates would impose a burden on consumers that would reduce the freight moved. In the week ended August 28 the number of cars loaded shipped was 986,064. This was the highest record that had been reached in the present year, and a good many comments were made implying that the shippers had been hurrying the forwarding of freight to forestall the advance in rates. But in the last week for which statistics are available, that ending September 18, the number of cars loaded moved was 987,213, which was the largest it has been in any week of the present year, excepting that ended August 28. This certainly does not indicate that the advance in rates has had any tendency to reduce the amount of freight shipped.

"An interesting question is as to whether the movement of freight this far indicates any recession in general business activity. It is well known that there has been a decline of activity in some industries, and there is much talk to the effect that a slump in production and commerce generally has been occurring. The statistics regarding car loadings, however, show that in the last four weeks which we have records the freight movement, continued to be practically as heavy as it ever was at that time of year. The year 1918 was one of tremendous industrial activity owing to the war; and in the late summer and early fall of the year 1919 there was a great revival of business activity and the freight traffic of the railway became as large as it ever had been at that time of year.

"How does the amount of freight which recently has been moved compare with the amounts moved during the corresponding weeks of 1918 and 1919? In the four weeks ending September 18, 1920, the total number of cars of freight loaded was 3,788,763. This was only 9,214 cars less than in the corresponding weeks of 1919. The number of cars moved in these weeks of 1920 was only 12,485 less than in 1918. The differences between the amounts of freight moved in 1918, 1919 and 1920 were relatively infinitesimal. The figures indicate that the productive and commercial activity of the country on the whole was as great as in either of the preceding two years, although there undoubtedly was less business and commerce generally in particular industries and particular territories."

"THE MISFIT WIFE"—The new Metro production, starring Alice Lake, is being presented today and will also be shown tomorrow. Alice Lake will be seen as Katie Malloy, a laundress who loses her job through burning a hole in a silk shirt and who sets out on a career as a manufacturer in the rough down town of Paris, Wyo. There she meets Peter Crandall, a New Yorker, who has gone West to take up Prohibition in a serious way, but who becomes daily more frivolous about it. Paris, Wyoming, affords little else in the way of diversion. Peter aids Katie in side-tracking Shad Perkins, the offensive proprietor of the local hotel, and Katie takes Peter in hand. She becomes more interesting to him than drink or cards. When he's thoroughly reformed they are married. His parents ask him to bring his wife home. It means a strange environment for Katie the New York house of footmen, tea-wagons and Harvard accents but she braves it out. Only Peter's step-mother proves insupportable. She resents Katie's "lack of breeding," tells her she's a "snob," and that she "never really could belong." The little matrimonial drama, "assault upon the affections of her husband's family is then developed into a winning fight, with the East capitulating before the Western girl's straightforward methods.

Are Women Naturally Dependent? A prominent writer claims. Women are constituted with a delicate organism and in the cases out of ten mental depression may be attributed to an abnormal condition of the system, which expresses itself in nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, indigestion, causing constant misery and as a result dependency. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, is the one great remedy for this condition. It goes to the root of the trouble and overcomes dependency. Try it.
